PersianPulse

WEEK RECAP

Week 1 in five facts

Plus the answer to Thursday's poll

1 Carrots
Vitamin A matters for vision through deficiency, not super-sight.

2 Vitamin C
½ cup of raw red pepper (95 mg) beats one medium orange (70 mg).

3 Multivitamins
They do not appear to reliably reduce chronic disease risk, per NIH.

4 Potassium
1 cup of lentils (731 mg) and a baked potato (610 mg) top one banana (422 mg).

5 Plant iron
Vitamin C enhances absorption of iron from plant foods.

POLL ANSWER
B, lentils. Pulses are legumes harvested for dry seeds. Green beans, soybeans and peanuts are not counted as pulses (FAO).

Next week brings new myth checks, food facts and recipes.

Sources: NIH Office of Dietary Supplements fact sheets (Vitamin A, Vitamin C, Iron, Potassium, Multivitamins); FAO
Photo: Carissa Gan · CC0, Wikimedia Commons
Educational content, not medical advice.